This workshop offers students a structured approach to writing the final draft of their personal statement for college applications. The course will begin with a primer on writing a clear and compelling essay, then lead students through the brainstorming and outlining process, and finally support students in the revision of the final draft. The instructor will foster a workshop environment to facilitate peer feedback on students' first drafts.

In this intimate workshop setting, students can feel comfortable bringing in their personal statement drafts at any stage of development; the instructor will be in constant conversation with each student about his/her writing objectives and standards. The instructor will also help students interpret and act on the advice of their school college counselors so that the course seamlessly supports the students' ongoing college process.
